Winter had now arrived, the American situation was precarious and likely to become more so, and therefore something must be done at once. In an excess of boldness it was decided to take Quebec by storm, and so the year 1775 went out in the agonies of a desperate midnight battle, in which Montgomery was slain, one of Arnold s legs was shattered, and Morgan was taken prisoner, after all three had performed prodigies of valor worthy of the old Crusaders. Quebec was not taken, but the Americans were badly defeated. By hook and by crook, however, with various changes of commanders, they contrived to maintain themselves in the country until the following summer, which saw them pushed back into New York. We may now turn our attention to Boston, upon which Washington was unable to move until properly furnished with heavy guns. These were brought together during the winter, for the most part dragged on sledges all the way from Ticonderoga. There are heights in Dorchester by which Boston was then commanded as completely as by Bunker Hill. For some unaccountable reason, General Howe neglected to occupy these heights, so that when Washington s cannon arrived he succeeded in mounting them there. The position was far stronger than the one which the Americans had taken the year before in Charlestown. There was no obvious way of reaching it except by a front attack, and in this...
